

Celebrate and Delight in Science in New Comics Anthology

(BOSTON, MA) Boundless is a love letter to science: a comics anthology that celebrates, explores, and infuses science into tales about our real (and imagined) world. Inside its pages, you will find stories that are engaging, beautiful yet accurate, and compelling in their depiction of all the wondrous allure science so regularly brings to our lives, providing a unique learning tool for educating comics enthusiasts and science buffs of all ages.

Supported on Kickstarter by over 800 backers, the 200+ page anthology consists of over 30 different pieces from nearly 40 artists and writers, exploring various scientific processes, technologies, methods, and historical moments in fields including biology, medicine, physics, optics, and astronomy. The book details the medical mystery of Phineas Gage—who survived an iron bar piercing his skull in the 1800s—and the zombie fungus cordyceps, the science of fermentation, a mysterious and ancient fish of the deep, dark matter, relativity, computer viruses, and more.

Jennifer Oulette, from Gizmodo, said about Boundless:

“Science is brimming over with fantastic concepts and stories, and Boundless provides ample evidence in its more than 200 pages.”

About the authors

Boundless was edited by the team of Olivia Li, Jordan Stillman, Neil Johnson, and Heide Solbrig and features work from nearly 40 artists and writers, including Dan Mazur, Aya Rothwell, Chad Essley, Rayna Cendre, E. J. Barnes, LB Lee, Eric Boeker, Holly Foltz, Jess Semeraro, Kevin Kite, Michelle McCauley, Madeleine Witt, and Victoria Robado.
